Mr. and Mrs. Eph Coombs returned home last Sunday night from a 5-weeks' tour of California, Texas and Old Mexico. They went from this city to Juarez, Mexico and visited the following cities enroute: Sacramento, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Cal., and El Paso, Texas. On the return trip they came up the coast line visiting San Francisco and other cities of California. They report having had a most enjoyable trip both going and coming, not having experienced any wet weather on the entire journey. Considerable of their time was spent in Colonial Juarez and they also visited Ciudad Juarez. In the last named city, Sunday, March 13th, they witnessed one of the greatest bull-fights ever held in that locality. It was a contest between the chief Matador of Spain and the chief Matador of Old Mexico, for a purse of $2,000—$1,000 a side. Sunday is the chief big day for sports of all kinds in Mexico, everything wide open all day. Mr. Coombs seems much improved in health.
